EDITOR'S NOTES

I had a lot of fun with this month's issue.

We have a new Editor at Large Richard Rendon, which was actually recommended by Eddie Mc. It's not that I hadn't thought of it lol

We are really excited to feature a new photographer in Gilbert & Li who was nice enough to provide us with cover girl Lauren. I really feel that these photos set the tone for our relaunch as east SIXTH magazine.

Yes, we will be renaming, rebranding and re-launching. My goal is to have that done in time for the August 2016 issue.

We have been waiting to feature our Model of the Month Vivi Estrada, OMG we have been holding these photos for so long lol

Marty McKee comes through again with a fantastic fashion and lace set from Jenna.

In our feature article John Brunner covers the ups and downs of Depression.

Closing out the issue we have Fantasy Girl Queen Ash in a wonderful pictorial shot by photographer Clint Miller.

That said...on to the next one!

Q & A

Top Floor Magazine answers the questions submitted to the Playboy Advisor

How do you tell if your spouse is cheating? I've been receiving a lot of hang up calls lately, which makes me suspicious. - P.L., Phoenix, Arizona

Ask. If you really feel that something is going on, just ask her about it. Hang ups aren't really a sign of cheating, especially not in this day and age. I really doubt your spouse would be dumb enough to give out your home telephone number - that's so 70's. Since the invention of the cell phone and pager, it's very unlikely that your "cheating" spouse would use a land line as her primary means of communication. I mean how would she take that call. If she tells you no and you still have suspicion, you need to look for better clues like unexplained gifts, no tan line under her ring, the passenger seat in her car moved, time away from home that she can't or refuses to account for. If you want to go all out, you can hire a private investigator but please, please, please don't let a few hang up calls be the basis for accusing your spouse of infidelity.

My girlfriend and I went on a weekend getaway. We had sex twice the first night but the next night she went to sleep. That has happened before. I don't want to sound like a prick but it would be nice for her to give me some when I spend a lot of money. What should I do? - C.E., Austin, Texas.

Get over it. Is she your girlfriend or a hooker? If she is your girlfriend then you shouldn't really be worried about the amount of money you spend. However, if you really feel like there is some type of connection between the amount of money you spend and the number of times you get fucked - then dump your girlfriend and hire a hooker. Oh, and go for a full service escort. That way you'll have some eye candy on your arm during the evening and guaranteed booty that you can kick out of your room at the end of the night.

Seriously?

The poor lad had to be helped out when he attempted to test how cold the pump was - and ended up stuck to it. Salford Reveller Reece was in the Bachelor Inn in Dublin with friends when the funny episode happened. After a couple of attempts to free himself, panic sets in as the desperate drinker realizes his predicament. With baffled bar staff looking on, Reece's friends pour various liquids on his tongue until he finally comes loose.

A home has become a sensation in a rural English village for having neatly trimmed garden hedges - in the shape of giant PENIS-

ES. The property, in Frankie Howerd's former home village of Cross, near Axbridge in Somerset, was spotted by walker Nigel Vile. He quickly snapped a shot of the large phallus-shaped plants near the Mendip Hills in Somerset and shared them on Facebook where they caused a bit of a sensation.

Meet Ivan the Terminator - Russia's robotic answer to Iron Man that could be about to change military warfare forever.

The terrifying new robot soldier is the latest in the country's list of high-tech weaponry as it competes with the US and China in the artificial intelligence stakes. According to Russian newspaper Komosomolskaya Pravda, the droid is designed "to replace the person in the battle or in emergency areas where there is a risk of explosion, fire, high background radiation, or other conditions harmful to humans.

"The development of a special military robot is one of the priorities of military construction in Russia."

The Iron Man machines are remotely controlled, but there are fears that they could become completely autonomous in the future. They can drive cars by automatically scanning the road for any blockages or barriers.

Even more impressively, the robots can emulate the exact movements of a human, thanks to a special control suit that can be worn by the operator.

Seriously Sexy

Playboy has moved away from featuring nudity...sort of? You can tell by this shot of JOSIE CANSECO that they still featuring titillating photos only without all of the good stuff.

Money Monster

A TV personality's insider trading tips have made him the money guru of Wall Street. When a viewer, who lost all of his family's money on a bad tip from Lee, decides to hold Lee hostage on air, ratings soar as the entire country tunes in to this media frenzy to find out just how much a man's life is worth.

Ma Ma

Ma ma follows Magda (Penelope Cruz) as she experiences tragedies and miracles alike. Silver Linings Playbook

Cooper plays Patrick "Pat" Solitano, Jr., a man with bipolar disorder who is released from a psychiatric hospital and moves back in with his parents, played by Robert De Niro and Jacki Weaver. Determined to win back his estranged wife, Pat meets recently widowed Tiffany Maxwell, portrayed by Jennifer Lawrence, who offers to help him get his wife back if he enters a dance competition with her. The two become closer as they train and Pat, his father, and Tiffany examine their relationships with each other as they cope with their problems.

The film has a very REAL feel to it and does a great job at shining a light on the stigmas of mental disorders.

Great film! Available Netflix

Respectable - The Mary Millington Story

The film mixes archive footage, previously unseen photographs and interviews with family, friends and the co-stars of one of the most infamous porn stars.

Sex in Comix

Interviews with noted illustrators such as R. Crumb and Aurelia Aurita highlight the colorful history and resurgent popularity of erotic comic strips.

Album of the Month

The most complicated, egregious thing about being at the top of your game is trying to figure out how to get better. For some, it destroys them. Yet others like Eric Clapton make the process look simple. Case in point, Clapton's new release I Still Do - the title speaks for itself. The 71 year old guitar legend takes you straight to an old smoke filled Blues bar, drink in hand, allowing each note to sway you back and forth like a warm summer breeze...and hold you. The great thing about listening to these offerings from music legends is they stay true to his form of music.

age 92 only two days before the show's final closing was announced.

Jubilee was an incredibly expensive show to produce, making it one of the costliest in the history of Las Vegas. Unfortunately, it reached the point where it became unprofitable, and the decision was made too close. It's the same old story we see everywhere – profits come first. Yeah, I get it, gotta make $$$, that's why it's called show "business", but it's still sad when those bright lights go dark.

I was majorly bummed to miss Jubilee, being a huge fan of all things showgirl (I'm convinced I was a Vegas showgirl in a past life lol!) By coincidence, a friend told me about a historic exhibit of Vegas costumes at the Nevada State Museum.

That lifted my post-Jubilee depression a little! The museum is located on the grounds of an area known as the Springs Preserve, not far from downtown and the Strip.

Normally, my idea of a fun time in Vegas doesn't involve anything remotely connected to a museum, but how could I pass up the opportunity to see some of these glitzy costumes up close and personal?

So, I took a leisurely day of R&R to check it out. I'm so glad I did - it was really beyond impressive and fascinating.

It was great to see that the museum included several of the costumes from Jubilee, as well as the famous Folies Bergere show, which ran for an incredible 50 years at the Tropicana.

Here's a few shots I took of the highlights....

Naturally, these costumes look a lot sexier on real, live girls strutting their stuff, but it was still cool to see them on public display, even if I could only peer at them through the sterile, climate-controlled glass. They literally had costumes and elaborate head-dresses displayed all the way up to the ceiling. I've never seen anything quite like it!

So, what does the future hold for the beloved Jubilee? Will it rise from the ashes as a contemporary production geared to modern tastes? Honestly, I don't think that will work. Being a true showgirl isn't just about tits and feathers. It's a classic art form which needs to be appreciated in this day and age when there's not much left to the imagination. There's talk in Vegas that some version of the show might happen again, but it will never be the mega-extravaganza that it was. Nevertheless, I like to think it will live again. There's definitely an audience for it – after all, “Fine Feathers Make Fine Fans”, and fans of shows like Jubilee will always be around. We appreciate the elegance, the style, and the sexy, timeless beauty of gorgeous women being gorgeous! If it ever opens again, this fan will definitely be there, front row center!

- In fact, major depression is the leading cause of disability for Americans between the ages of 15 and 44, according to the CDC.
- Research published in The American Journal of Psychiatry found that major depression rates for American adults increased from 3.33 percent to 7.06 percent from 1991 through 2002.
- Depression is also considered a worldwide epidemic, with 5 percent of the global population suffering from the condition, according to the World Health Organization.

A Few Forms of Depression

- Dysthymia. This is a type of minor but chronic depression that lasts two years or longer. Dysthymia affects about 1.5 percent of American adults.
- Postpartum depression. This form of depression affects about 10 to 15 percent of women shortly after childbirth.
- Seasonal affective disorder (SAD). This type of depression usually occurs during winter months and is probably caused by lack of natural sunlight. SAD affects 4 to 6 percent of Americans and is more common the farther north you live.
- Bipolar disorder. This condition involves moods that cycle between depression and extreme excitability, called mania. Bipolar disorder affects about 2.6 percent of American adults.
- Psychotic depression. This type of depression is the most severe form and includes breaks with reality, such as hallucinations or delusions. It is less common than other forms of depression; according to one study, psychotic depression occurs in about 5 percent of people who suffer from major depression.

Depression may increase the risk for another illness, and dealing with an illness may lead to depression.

According to the NIMH, depression affects:

- More than 40 percent of those with post-traumatic stress disorder
- 25 percent of those who have cancer
- 27 percent of those with substance abuse problems
- 50 percent of those with Parkinson's disease
- 50 to 75 percent of those who have an eating disorder
- 33 percent of those who've had a heart attack

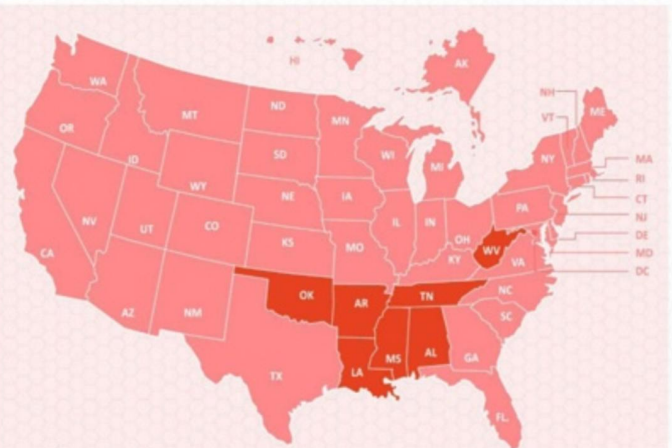

Many studies have found that being divorced, separated, or widowed is closely linked to depression. The loss of a marriage may lead to depression, or depression may lead to loss of a marriage.

- Married women are more likely to be depressed than unmarried women.
- Married men are less likely to be depressed than unmarried men.
- Unhappily married women are three times more likely to be depressed than unhappily married men.

In other words, marriage seems to create a protective buffer against depression for men, but not for women.

Depression by State

■ U.S. States with the highest rates of adults meeting the criteria for depression.

and had just spent two years living in another state. I didn't move back because I had to, I moved back because I missed being home.

My mother was so abusive. She was dealing with her own mental problems. One night after one of her bullshit rants, I decided to get drunk!

On my way to bed I knocked on her door and asked her for some Tylenol. She handed me almost a full bottle and I contemplated taking all of them.

This time I wouldn't be able to call for her because she was the problem. It was my sister that prevented me this time. It wasn't through her words, she wasn't there, it was the thought of leaving her alone with this crazy woman that stopped me. I couldn't bare the thought of not being able to be there to protect her.

I refused to accept the fact that I had a problem basically because of this quote -

Life is 10% what happens to you and 90% how you react to it.

Charles R. Swindoll

Also, my mother had made such a big deal out of her mental illness. After my father died she began to do so many things that were out of character and the same can be said for my sister. It was almost as if my father had never existed. Everything that I had been conditioned to think just didn't apply to them. I rejected their ideas and the fact that I could not control myself or my emotions without the help of medication.

The next dark moment came when my mother in-law moved in. It's not that she wasn't welcome but it changed everything that I did to keep the sunshine in my life.

My wife and I moved out of our bedroom and into the basement. Her mother worked nights and our small children didn't want to sleep upstairs alone, so they moved their mattresses into the basement with us.

It doesn't sound like a big deal but the effect on me was tragic. I had to take down all of my music equipment - the one thing that made me happy, my one escape.

I was also subjected to my kids schedule.

I'm a guy who like to write late into the night but I had to adhere to my kids early bedtime...THEY WERE NOW SLEEPING IN MY OFFICE/STUDIO.

Now I have no outlet, no release...no ESCAPE.

Day after day, week after week, month after month turned into years and I felt myself sinking deeper and deeper into a black hole.

It didn't help that my mother-in-law was trying to pull rank and co-parent from time to time. I found myself having to reinstruct my kids on what the rules were in MY household.

Again, I found myself contemplating ending it all.

I would sit alone late at night and think that I could alleviate myself from all of this stress, all of this responsibility so easily.

This time it was my kids that brought me back from the abyss. They were doing so well, I didn't want to add "father committed suicide" to their resume.

That's just a few personal examples of my dealings with the DARK DEMON but I would like to share with you a few facts pertaining to depression.

- It's possible to just have one MAJOR bout of depression or recurring episodes.
- According to depression statistics from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), about 9 percent of adult Americans have feelings of hopelessness, despondency, and/or guilt that generate a diagnosis of depression.
- At any given time, about 3 percent of adults have major depression, also known as major depressive disorder, a long-lasting and severe form of depression.

- In fact, major depression is the leading cause of disability for Americans between the ages of 15 and 44, according to the CDC.
- Research published in The American Journal of Psychiatry found that major depression rates for American adults increased from 3.33 percent to 7.06 percent from 1991 through 2002.

Bus full of Nuns

A bus full of Nuns falls off a cliff and they all die. They arrive at the gates of heaven and meet St. Peter. St. Peter says to them "Sisters, welcome to Heaven. In a moment I will let you all through the pearly gates, but before I may do that, I must ask each of you a single question. Please form a single-file line." And they do so. St. Peter turns to the first Nun in the line and asks her "Sister, have you ever touched a penis?" The Sister Responds "Well... there was this one time... that I kinda sorta... touched one with the tip of my pinky finger..." St. Peter says "Alright Sister, now dip the tip of your pinky finger in the Holy Water, and you may be admitted." and she did so. St. Peter now turns to the second nun and says "Sister, have you ever touched a penis?" "Well.... There was this one time... that I held one for a moment..." "Alright Sister, now just wash your hands in the Holy Water, and you may be admitted" and she does so. Now at this, there is a noise, a jostling in the line. It seems that one nun is trying to cut in front of another! St. Peter sees this and asks the Nun "Sister Susan, what is this? There is no rush!" Sister Susan responds "Well if I'm going to have to gargle this stuff, I'd rather do it before Sister Mary sticks her ass in it!"

VooDoo Dick

There was a businessman who was getting ready to go on a long business trip. He knew his wife was a flirtatious sort, so he thought he'd try to get her something to keep her occupied while he was gone, because he didn't much like the idea of her screwing someone else.

So he went to a store that sold sex toys and started looking around. He thought about a life-sized sex doll, but that was too close to another man for him. He was browsing through the dildos, looking for something special to please his wife, and started talking to the old man behind the counter.

He explained his situation, the old man. "Well, I don't really know of anything that will do the trick. We have vibrating dildos, special attachments, and so on, but I don't know of anything that will keep her occupied for weeks, except ..." said the old man, and then he stopped. "Except what?" asked the businessman. "Nothing, nothing," said the old man. "C'mon, tell me! I need something!" protested the businessman. "Well, sir, I don't usually mention this, but there is the 'voodoo dick,'" the old man said. "So what's up with this voodoo dick?" the businessman asked.

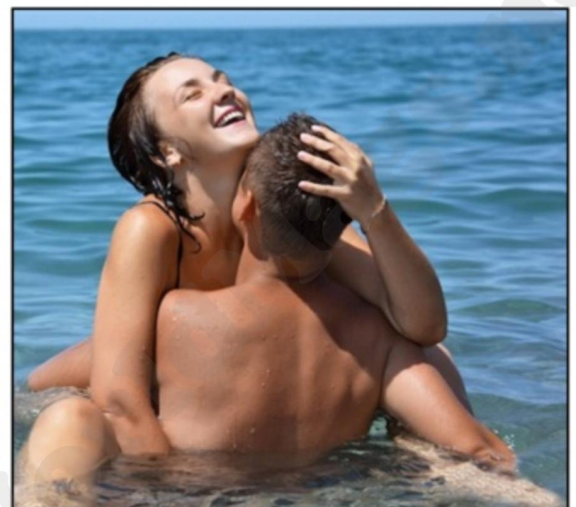

The old man reached under the counter, and pulled out an old wooden box carved with strange symbols. He opened it, and there lay a very ordinary-looking dildo. The businessman laughed, and said, "Big fucking deal. It looks like every other dildo in this shop!" The old man said, "But you haven't seen what it'll do yet." He pointed to a door and said "Voodoo dick, the door." The voodoo dick rose out of its box, darted over to the door, and started screwing the keyhole. The whole door shook with the vibrations, and a crack developed down the middle. Before the door could split, the old man said, "Voodoo dick, get back in your box!" The voodoo dick stopped, floated back to the box and lay there, quiescent once more.

The businessman said, "I'll take it!" The old man resisted and said it wasn't for sale, but he finally surrendered to $700 in cash. The guy took it home to his wife, told her it was a special dildo and that to use it, all she had to do was say, "Voodoo dick, my pussy." He left for his trip satisfied things would be fine while he was gone. After he'd been gone a few days, the wife was unbearably horny. She thought of several people who would willingly satisfy her, but then she remembered the voodoo dick. She got it out, and said "Voodoo dick, my pussy!" The voodoo dick shot to her crotch and started pumping. It was great, like nothing she'd ever experienced before. After three orgasms, she decided she'd had enough, and tried to pull it out, but it was stuck in her, still thrusting. Her husband had forgot to tell her how to shut it off. So she decided to go to the hospital to see if they could help.

On the way, another orgasm nearly made her swerve off the road, and she was pulled over by a policeman. He asked for her license, and then asked how much she'd had to drink. Gasping and twitching, she explained that she hadn't been drinking, but that a voodoo dick was stuck in her pussy, and wouldn't stop screwing. The officer looked at her for a second, and then said, "Yea, right. Voodoo dick, my ass!"
